Mr. David Morrison
Deputy Director, Planning & Public Works

Dear Mr. Morrison,

Thank you for the opportunity for Capay Valley Vision Ag Task Force to comment on the proposed Yolo County Ag Ordinance update. We spent the past several months working diligently to create comments that would help local ag enterprises succeed and strengthen the local ag economy. We formulated our comments based on the following principals to create an ordinance that will:

1. Allow for the creation of diversified ag economy and income streams
2. Lower the barriers of entry to farmers and encourage a new generation of farmers
3. Ensure a simple and accessible permitting process
4. Respect public safety and quality of life
5. Promote public education on farming and rural life

Our comments are focused on achieving the stated goals of the Yolo County General Plan and the Yolo County Tactical plan to stimulate and support the regional farm economy through 'agritourism', and at the same time promote greater food access and food security by building a more vibrant farm economy.

Through our discussions we found the key needs for farmers to successfully enhance their ag enterprises through agritourism are feeding and housing visitors. Allowing camping, farm stays, bed and breakfasts, and farm dinners is vitally important. Activities that do not require additional structures or changes to the land should be allowed by right. Low risk activities should be given latitude by both environmental health and planning departments. Currently the Capay Valley does not have enough dining or overnight stay options to keep visitors here. The Ag Ordinance should provide regulations that encourage these types of activities rather than over regulating, discouraging farmers from engaging in these activities.

In addition to these needs, there are a number of new farmers with small farms that do not meet the typical vision of farming. They have small parcels and small scale plans that do not fit the conventional definitions provided in this document. They often maximize their personal labor and emphasize market relationships rather than capital intensity. For example, a small dairy of six cows could never comply with the regulations mandated for large dairies with hundreds of cows. Some of these small-scale farmers, farm on as few as four acres. Traditionally, an economically viable farm is considered as no less than 80 acres. New farmers cannot afford to purchase 80 acres. Without inheriting land there is almost no way for new farmers to enter the industry unless they can find small parcels to purchase.

There are many events that happen in the Capay Valley that do not meet the cookie-cutter definition of an event center. Many of these events should go on by right. For example, school tours were not included in the ordinance. This is an important activity that many farms participate in. It generates minimal traffic and gives children valuable hands-on farming experience. This type of activity should be separated from event centers. The Ag Task Force has appointed a subcommittee to further develop our comments regarding event centers without a direct ag component as a current consensus has not been reached on their role in agritourism. This subcommittee will look at parcel size, density, and access when developing regulation comments. It will also look at the event component included in Bed and Breakfasts.

There are several other issues not addressed in the ordinance. Commercial kitchens are missing from the ordinance. Commercial kitchens are a necessary addition due to the fact many foods must be prepared in a commercial kitchen in order to be served to the public. Many people in the Capay Valley are considering installation of commercial kitchens as a way to maximize the value of on-farm production. These kitchens should be encouraged as an extension of the Cottage Foods Bill that allows the production of low risk foods in ones home kitchen. They should be seen as a 'by right' activity that is much like a winery- finishing farm production to its highest value and greatest return to the producer. U-Picks, areas the public can go and pick their own produce, are also absent from the ordinance. U-picks are considered quintessential agritourism by some and should be allowed by right.

Additionally, the Ag Task Force received input from many local livestock farmers. We used their expertise to select reasonable numbers of animals that a farmer should be able to keep without any oversight. The consensus was that a lot of the proposed numbers were far too low and restrictive. The farmers are the experts on what numbers can reasonably be kept with minimal oversight.

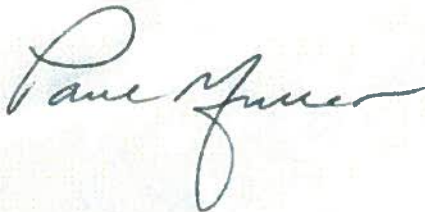

Farmers in the Capay Valley are already engaged in numerous ancillary activities on their farms. They generate additional income for the farmer, provide the public with education on farming and rural life, and generate additional tax revenue for the county. Excessive permitting and regulation will prevent many of these activities from continuing. We would also like to propose a self-certification checklist for many of these activities, which are listed in the attached table. Self-certification checklists would be available online creating guidance and accountability for the farmer at no cost. The Ag Task Force believes farmers need to be responsible and this provides a free mechanism for creating positive outcomes with a more streamlined approach. The Yolo County Health Department developed self-certification checklists for vendors at the Almond Festival and it was very successful. The Capay Valley Vision Ag Task Force would be happy to help in the creation of these checklists.

Farming is a challenging business. Increased regulations, market concentration and high costs of entry have caused new rural entrepreneurs/farmers to be more creative and look to ancillary enterprises to supplement their incomes on the farm. By enacting our recommendations the County would further achieve its goals as set forth in the General Plan: to preserve agriculture, promote a healthy farm economy, and educate the public on agricultural issues. A more liberalized ag ordinance will also assist growers with their ambitions of creating more regionally centered food production to better serve the County's food needs. Educating the community about the cornucopia grown just miles away and creating new public outlets to purchase food will greatly encourage the community to eat locally and will, at the same time, improve the quality of life for county residents.

Thank you for considering our comments; please see the additional definitions and recommended changes to the allowable land uses and permit requirements. The Capay Valley Vision Ag Task Force considers these changes crucial for the viable future of agriculture in the Capay Valley.

Sincerely,

Dear Chairman Chamberlain,

The Yolo County Visitors Bureau is pleased to offer its support the Capay Valley Vision Ag Task Force recommended changes to the Yolo County Agricultural Ordinance.

The Yolo County Visitors Bureau promotes tourism throughout Yolo County. The recommendations of the Ag Task Force, which include input from the YCVB, are specifically crafted to assist farmers in engaging in agritourism activities, in a way that is consistent with the values of Yolo County and the long-standing commitment to preserving our agricultural heritage. The CVV takes very seriously its tagline, "Preserving a sense of place."

The entire County benefits from having farmers engage in activities like agritourism to supplement their incomes and increase tax revenue. These activities also create more attractions for visitors while enhancing Yolo County's reputation and potential as a tourism destination with distinctive appeal.

The Ag Task Force gave considerable attention to public safety and the need for reasonable and low-cost oversight for agritourism activities. They created the recommendations to ensure the public could engage in safe activities on the farm, without forcing farm-owners to spend thousands of dollars in permitting fees, which could potentially stop them from offering attractions to the public.

Yolo County needs an Agricultural Ordinance that supports the new face of farming. I urge you to support Capay Valley Vision's Ag Task Force recommendations.

Sincerely,

Re: Yolo County Ag Ordinance

Supervisors:

The Dunnigan Advisory Committee recently reviewed a presentation by the Capay Valley Vision Ag Task Force. The Dunnigan Advisory Committee supports the sentiment to reduce the proposed Ag ordinance regulations that will allow more flexibility to the Agricultural community businesses. We are in agreement that the changes proposed will allow farmers to have more economically viable farming operations throughout Yolo County.

Yolo County has always been in agreement that agriculture is crucial to the economic viability of the county, it is imperative that this industry strives to encourage new generations of farmers to sustain this industry. Agricultural business is changing and is no longer just growing commercial crops and selling it to large buyers. Other uses have become essential to many Ag farms. We believe considering these changes will help to reach this goal.

We understand the need for regulation but the current regulation is outdated and does not align with what agriculture is today. The future changes rapidly in all phases so must agriculture. Ag tourism is a viable solution to introduce the younger generation to the methods of the farm industry; it also provides a view of what agriculture is all about and how it affects our everyday lives. It also provides economic sustainability to our farmers and the ability to offer their achievements to the communities through on site farm sales, fruit and vegetable stands and by local farmers markets. Nothing is better than local grown produce. It is also providing a much needed recreation benefit to the community at large.

The Capay Valley Vision Ag Task Force has reviewed the ordinance with the future in mind and presented some very viable changes to the proposed resolution, we totally support their efforts, let's bring agriculture into the future.

Sincerely,

Neil Busch
